Commissioner Lovejoy Attends Graduation Ceremonies at Area High Schools, Colleges

SANTA FE – Throughout the year, New Mexico Public Regulation Commissioner Lynda Lovejoy receives many requests to attend special events held in her district, which encompasses the northwest quadrant of the state.

Toward the end of the school year, those requests ramp up to include graduation ceremonies held at local high schools and on college campuses.

The purpose of attending high school and college graduation ceremonies are Commissioner Lovejoy's way of staying connected to her constituency and the communities she represents.

"I want to congratulate all of the graduates in my district as well as throughout the state for their persistence and hard work to accomplish their goals and securing their futures," Commissioner Lovejoy stated.
